

It's that time of year again when Halton Libraries starts thinking about the summer holidays and the Summer Reading Challenge. This year the theme is "Marvellous Makers" and it is a celebration of the creative arts. As usual we will have loads going on as well as promoting the importance of reading for pleasure.

If you'd like our Children and Families Development Officer, Emma, to come along to your school to give an assembly telling the children about the challenge, now is the time to get booked in! The challenge officially kicks off on July 6th but Emma is ready anytime! Plus we will be sending out another promotional video to look out for that after half term.

Please email emma.boone@halton.gov.uk to book Emma in for an assembly spot. She's very keen!
